

Event looks at growth solutions

Manufacturing trends analysed

The fourth annual Manufacturing Indaba will focus on growth solutions this year and the impact future trends will have on the manufacturing sector in South Africa.

As a prime manufacturing centre in South Africa, the City of Ekurhuleni will host the event at Emperors Palace from June 27 to 28.

The focus of the Indaba will be on panel discussions looking at the future growth of manufacturing in SA.

The informative and interactive sessions will allow for the exploration of strategies for growth and competitive advantage, including the productivity debate and efficient cost reducing strategies that aid growth.

The Indaba provides a platform for government and the relevant stakeholders to interact. It gives them the opportunity to achieve clarity regarding incentives available to local companies.

And just as a fundamental, it ensures foreign investment through government incentives on offer, assisting global companies to get set up in the local manufacturing sector.

In order for South Africa to compete internationally, technology and its effect on the manufacturing industry across the world and in South Africa will be a pertinent topic.
